SPIRITUAL HOME: MALIBU

Glamorous interior guru Kelly Wearstler's fashion sensibility (in member the turban with the leaf dress?)

It's an open secret that many in the interior design world tuned into Bravo's Top Design as much to ogle judge Kelly Wearstler's fashion sensibility (in member the turban with the leaf dress?)

But even a take-it-to-the-max type like Wearstler—who's extravaganza moves include posing as a Playboy centerfold to pay off her student loans and buying a Beverly Hills mansion partly because the fall for the artist's china—likes to dial it down a notch from time to time. So, most Friday afternoons, she drives up the Pacific Coast Highway with her husband, brother Brad Kozars, and their two sons, Oliver and Elliott, to find her quiet(ish) center at their recently completed bleached-walnut-clad five-bedroom house on Malibu's Carbon Beach.—MELISSA PEREZ

ESQ Wearstler is known for having brought grand theatricality back to Hollywood's interiors and Kozars's Vicency Hotels, the latest of which is in Anguilla. In Her (Amore Mio), her new book, she has organized her recent projects by

AF At night, Wearstler orders the sea bass with shiitake mushrooms and arisaboko at TRUSSARDI di Giorgio Baldi. "It's warm, true, incredible Italian cooking." For a breakfast treat, the family braves the notoriously rocky proprietor at Malibu Kitchen and Gerson for the corn muffins ("just a few pieces off the top—I have to control it, or I'll blow up"), jorgobaldi.com/malibuhomepost.com.

FR She maintains her hour-long morning cardio routine at Malibu Gym, then spends days outside with her sons, surfing on nearby Broad Beach or hiking in Solstice Canyon. "I grew up in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina; this feels like home." Although she's there to forget work, she wouldn't mind an antique store to pop in to, "that the boys will find these cool rocks, and I think, Look at the colors on that!" malibugems.com.

WHERE'S MY ID? The artist Marilyn Minter also has a way with glamour, although her approach to the subject—huge photo-real castaways and video screens of lips, with sweat, and glitter—veers on terrifying. Long an art name, she's recently become a pop-culture force, too. She stays grounded with retreats to her medieval house in the Po

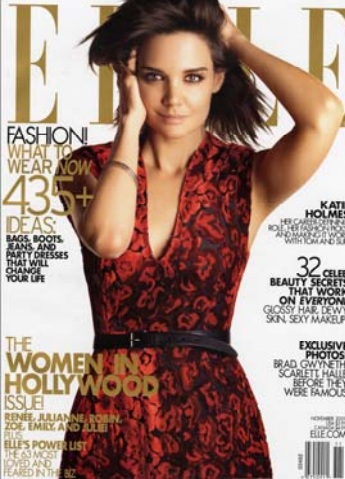

W Madison is using your ride Green Peak Center on her Shiny D Street art, and you're designing an extensive bag for Best Career Accessories book. You've been busy! How do you manage?

W I need one day a week where I do nothing at my house in Cold Spring, New York. I go up there religiously all seasons, with my husband and two dogs, Billy, a Shiba Inu, and Cypri, a border collie mix. We also foster border collies at GlamHighFashion.com. I'm an animal lover. Haven't been able to eat out in 22 years.

W You and it in...glammy, I couldn't have thought—
W That I was an animal-loving vegetarian? Oh yeah, big time. That's why I photographed Pamela Anderson

When we first saw Help Remedies' boxes labeled I HAVE A BLISTER, for the bandages, or I HAVE AN ACHING BODY, for the ibuprofen, we thought we'd stick to the less cutesy drug-store standards. But when we learned that their packaging is recycled paper and corn-based biodegradable "plastic" and their pills are sans dye or fillers, we came around. $4 each, helpneedhelp.com
